SALE OF TWENTY MILLION POUNDS

Of Tobacco Made To Owensboro Dealers By Green River Tobacco Growers' Association.

ESTIMATED VALUE $1,400,000.

All that is needed in Daviess county now for prosperity to come in leaps and bounds is a tobacco season.

Today the board of control of the Green River Tobacco Growers' Association, Henry S. Berry, president, sold all of its pooled tobacco to Owensboro dealers.

The amount sold is 20,000,000 pounds, and it is split into ten lots, going to that number of buyers.

Every feature of the deal has been settled, and a thorough understanding had by all the parties to this big sale, but no written contracts have been entered into, therefore the officers of the association and the buyers refuse to tell who the purchasers are.

The tobacco is divided into four grades and the prices are as follows: First grade, $9, $9, $3. Second grade, $8, $8, $3. Third grade, $7, $7, $3. Fourth grade, $6, $6, $3.

The pool includes the tobacco pledged to the Green River Tobacco Growers' Association in five counties—Daviess, McLean, Ohio, Hancock and Breckenridge.

The deal has been on for some time, and earlier in the week, a sale was made of the McLean and Hancock pools, but owing to a hitch of some kind it was declared off, but renewed again with the result that a deal was closed for the pool in every county to a number of Owensboro buyers.

While the names of buyers are given out it is understood that the American Tobacco company, the Imperial Tobacco company and the Gallagher are all heavy buyers.

No information is given out as to the cause of delay in selling the pool earlier, but it is said that the hitch was on the trash price.

The deal cleans up all the pooled tobacco in the Green River district, except the holdings of the home warehouse company, as the Equity people sold their pools a week or more ago.

The Warren county pool was sold about the same time that the Equity pools of the Green River district were sold.

The points of delivery of this tobacco are as follows:

Daviess.—Owensboro, Whitesville and probably Livia.

Hancock.—Hawesville and Lewisport.

McLean.—Calhoun, Sacramento and probably Livia.

Ohio.—Narrowes, Fordville and probably Hartford.

Breckenridge.—Glendene.

The estimated value of the big pool is $1,400,000.

The pool is distributed as follows:

Daviess.—11,000,000 pounds; value, $770,000.

McLean.—3,800,000 pounds; value, $266,000.

Hancock.—2,100,000 pounds; value, $147,000.

Ohio.—2,600,000 pounds; value, $182,000.

Breckenridge.—800,000 pounds; value, $56,000.

The board of control says that the date for delivery has not yet been fixed, and that no pooler must undertake to deliver before he is notified that the buyers are ready to receive. Receiving dates will be fixed right away so that the poolers may deliver tobacco and get money on their crops before Christmas.

This is the biggest single sale of tobacco ever made in the Green River section.—Owensboro Enquirer.

NOTICE.

The Breckenridge County Tobacco Growers' Association has bids on its pooled tobacco which they desire the people who have pooled with them to consider. For this purpose all who have pooled with the above Association should be present at Hardinsburg on Saturday, December 5. Remember a majority must be present or a sale cannot be made.

Respectfully,
J. E. Monarch,
Chairman.

Has Nice Position.

Miss Rosa Agnew, a former Cloverport girl, has a position as clerk in the post office at Elgin, Okla.

DAVID W. FAIRLEIGH GUEST OF TAFT.

Chairman of Republican City and County Committee of Jefferson, Has Interview.

President-Elect at Hot Springs.

HOT SPRINGS, Nov. 24.—Judge Taft had a long talk this evening with Attorney David W. Fairleigh of Louisville.

Fairleigh came here by appointment, and while he avowed that patronage matters were not considered, he admitted the conversation was of a political nature.

The only kind of a position which possibly would appeal to him is a Federal Judgeship, and such an office is not available at this time.

The two men reviewed conditions in Kentucky, and Mr. Taft expressed regret that the State did not go Republican on election day. Mr. Fairleigh gave it as his opinion that the primary causes of the loss of the State were the night riders' raids and the activity of the liquor interests in behalf of certain candidates on the Democratic ticket.

Reports emanating from Kentucky sources since election day have created the impression that the State Committee was not as zealous in behalf of the national ticket as it might have been, but the Louisville attorney told Mr. Taft that it had done the best it knew how.

The future of the Republican party in Kentucky, Tennessee and other Southern States where Mr. Taft made material gains, particularly among the white voters, was the subject of some discussion. While Mr. Taft has not yet begun to think of 1912, he is not overlooking any opportunity to store up information that may be of value in the next presidential campaign.

The fact that he deemed it worth while to spend an hour or two with a man of Mr. Fairleigh's type would seem to indicate that in seeking counsel upon political matters he does not intend to restrict himself entirely to men identified with the national campaign.—Louisville Herald.

BEAUTIFUL SERVICES

At The Lucile Memorial Church

Thanksgiving Day.

Folks were not too busy getting ready to carve Mr. Turley Thursday morning to attend the Thanksgiving meeting at the Presbyterian Church and well they were not, for a more beautiful service was never held on similar occasions in Cloverport.

The church was uniquely decorated by loving hands, the colors being green and red. The decorations were arranged in the windows and about the altar and they were radiant with beauty as the morning sun-light beamed upon them.

Singers of the different denominations filled the choir and the organist was Mrs. Venable whose music is greatly appreciated. The Rev. Graves had charge of the programme; the sermon was delivered by Rev. Currie. Rev. Lewis was absent on account of being called to Lewisport. The collection was divided among the different churches, each one receiving $1.37.

In the evening the Rev. McDonnell, a Christian minister preached to a large congregation. He was the guest of Judge and Mrs. Willis.

VISITING IN DALLAS.

Mrs. H. L. Stader and nephew, David Owen Hall, who left last week for Dallas, Texas, write that they had a safe journey and on their arrival at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mair, found Mrs. Sophia Ryan and charming little daughter, Lucile.

Peculiar Accident.

A serious accident happened to Mrs. N. B. Sanders Saturday afternoon at her home at Tobinsport, Ind. Her face was dreadfully bruised on the right side, but she does not remember what caused it. She thinks she must have fainted and fell unconsciously, which resulted in the injuries. When her husband found her she was standing in her room unconscious.

Mrs. Wilbur Gregory and baby, Francis Lee, of Louisville, are the guests of Mrs. Tom Bohrer.

McCALL-JOLLY

Wedding Solemnized With Beauty

In The Methodist Church

At Irvington.

A very quiet, but beautiful wedding took place last Wednesday afternoon when Miss Bettie Lee McCall and Mr. Edwin Jolly were united in marriage in the Methodist Church at Irvington. The church was adorned with graceful decorations and just before the bridal party arrived, a sweet musical program was given for the large company of guests present.

The Rev. Everetts English of Hardinsburg, officiated in the marriage ceremony at 3 o'clock, assisted by the Rev. Wilson. The only attendant was the charming little flower-girl, Miss Mary Heron.

The bride wore an exquisite tailored dress of blue cloth and carried a magnificent flower bouquet. Immediately after the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Jolly were guests of honor at a handsome reception given at the home of Mrs. Lydia Jolly.

Fine Sermon At Irvington.

There was an appreciative congregation assembled for the Thanksgiving service last Thursday. Rev. B. F. Wilson preached a most excellent patriotic sermon. The music rendered was inspiring and those who attended worship doubtless gave thanks for the privilege of being there.

For Pennsylvania Guests.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Murray will give a dinner party today in honor of Mrs. Bowne and Mrs. Phipps, of Chester, Pennsylvania.

This week we announce a One Dollar Contest. It will be open until December 16th, which is but fourteen more days. If you want to make a dollar quickly and with ease, enter this contest which is explained on the front page.

If you are interested in schools attend the meeting which is to be held in this city, Saturday morning. If you are too busy to go, send a representative. We are paying enough taxes now to give our children fairly good educational advantages. However, money alone cannot do everything, it takes work and zeal. Unless we manifest enthusiasm in behalf of our public schools, they will never improve. Emerson said, "Nothing great was ever achieved without enthusiasm."

If you are puzzled to know what to give for Christmas presents, solve the problem by giving your friends and relatives yearly subscriptions to The Breckenridge News. There are many of you, no doubt, who mail your copy of The News weekly to some one who is not a subscriber. Why not relieve yourself of this inconvenience by sending in the person's name to us with one dollar. What could be more acceptable and more enjoyable than the home paper every week for one year?

GOOD TIMES ARE ON.

The tobacco market is booming in this county. Farmers are delivering their crops and taking home pockets full of good American coin. They are the best pleased set of men in the world and are wearing "smiles that don't come off." At Garfield last Saturday and Monday, the town was crowded with wagons and farmers who were taking advantage of the soft mild weather to deliver their crops. The tobacco in this section has all been sold at prices ranging from $12 to $15 per 100 round.

At Ekron last Monday was another busy place for a happy and joyous set of farmers. They too, were delivering their tobacco to local dealers for which they were getting fancy prices. Ex-Representative W. A. Stith will finish this week delivering his crop of 6,000 pounds of Burley which he had sold at $12.50 round. P. P. Archer 4,000 pounds at $14 round and Jack Harrington & Bro., 30,000 pounds at $13 round. These sales were made early. The same crops now would bring $15. The local buyers are keen for the weed and are riding night and day gathering in what few crops remain unsold. Last year only a few hogheads were shipped from this section, owing to the low prices which prevailed. This year there will be four or five hundred hogheads shipped, and from the way the growers are scrambling for land to till next year, the crop will be doubled. Some growers are offering as high as $15 an acre rent for good tobacco land.

At Chester good times and good cheer are prevailing for a busy throng that is working, striving and pulling for dear life to unload the big, bright, long leaf burley to the local dealers. The growers in this section sold most of their crops while standing in the field, not yet matured, at prices ranging from $10 to $14 round. To give an idea of how money is flowing into that good neighborhood, the First State Branch Bank paid within two days last week, over $10,000 for the weed. This is only a starter of the flow of good sound American dollars into that section.

Very little, if any, of the weed has been delivered in this town. The pool formed at Hardinsburg has not yet made a deal and this is holding back both sellers and buyers. It is more than probable that the pool will make a sale soon as they have several bids which only await the approval of the farmers. Then the good times will strike this town!

Judge Adair's Experience

With Rockefeller's Trust

When Judge Adair was quite a young man, and not so settled and well satisfied with life as he is today, he went west. In Dallas, Texas, he located and secured a position there with a Cleveland Oil Company. The Standard Oil Company also had an office in that territory. However, competition was not great between the two companies until Judge Adair got on his working clothes. He was vigorous and enthusiastic and did all he could to make the Cleveland Company's sales over balance those of the Standard, and he did so by getting his Company to make the price of oil lower than the Standard's. He got orders and orders for oil, but it was not long until he became alarmed, seriously alarmed because shipments of oil failed to reach the different towns. He hardly knew what to do because he knew not the cause of the situation.

The Standard's manager at Dallas and Judge Adair were personal friends and frequently had confidential talks. It was in one of these that Judge Adair learned why his oil was not being sent to its destination. The manager told him secretly that the Standard had carloads of the Cleveland oil held at St. Louis. Judge Adair looked into the matter at once and had his shipments sent forward and ordered that further freight not be delayed.

But the Standard kept on until they succeeded in putting the Cleveland Company out of business. They did so by making the price of oil so low that not any company, except one that could control freight rates, could compete with such a price on oil. That's what John D. Rockefeller did for Judge Adair, made him lose his job and killed his Company. Of course, Mr. Rockefeller did not do this intentionally; the Standard Oil Company just wanted to sell more oil and could not do it without putting the Cleveland Company and their excellent young salesman Judge Adair, "down and out."

Judge Adair has been keenly interested in the recent prosecution against the great corporation and has been reading "The Story of The Standard Oil" daily. The accounts of it, he says, brings clearly to mind, his experience with Johnny D.

Most Beautiful Girls.

John Trenholm, District Inspector of Cumberland Telephone Company, was here last week from Nashville, inspecting the lines with J. C. Epley, the manager of this territory. Mr. Trenholm told Mr. Epley, and several others, he had never seen such beautiful girls as those who live in Cloverport. He raved about their beauty continually, and Mr. Trenholm also charmed them, especially the young ladies who have positions in the Cloverport Exchange. The recent visitor stated that he expected to come back to Cloverport to get his bride. There are many who are awaiting his return with interest that they might see his choice and have their curiosity, at least, satisfied.

Autobiography of A Christmas Gift

I am a Christmas gift. In fact, I have always been one. My age is now nineteen, though I may look older. I was made by the dainty hands of Miss Susanna Riley, who at that time was just the age I am now. Does she love me at present? She is still Miss Susanna and she still loves me.

Oh, yes, Miss Susanna gave me a way. Perhaps I should explain that I am twenty, being a pair of kilt allippers.

I had been told that I was a good design upon a young pastor of her church, so she knit me and sent me to the reverend youth.

Next Christmas the preacher's wife, who had received five other pairs, sent me to his sister.

You see, kilt allippers are guaranteed to any feet as well as any other feet. So the preacher's sister was not at all offended.

The next Christmas she sent me to her old college chum, Mrs. De Brown who was a member of her brother's congregation. Next Christmas Mrs. B. sent me to her pastor. The pastor grinned when he saw me again and remarked something like "Cast your bread upon the waters and it will return to you after many days."

The next Christmas the pastor sent me to his old college chum, who was sweet on Miss Susanna. There was every prospect of a match, since Miss Susanna had despaired of winning the preacher, who was known to be engaged to another lady. But the very next Christmas the preacher's college chum sent me to Miss Susanna with a perfume to praise her dainty lit feet. This broke off the match, of course.

Well, next Christmas Miss Susanna mailed me to a friend of hers clear across the continent. Miss Susanna's address on the corner of the box to which I was mailed got rubbed off en route, and her friend didn't know who sent me.

So the very next Christmas I returned to Miss Susanna. Oh, I was hard to lose! I was not made to wear. I was made to circulate. I am a good thing, and so everybody passes me along.

Oh, so you recognize me now? Yes, I spent a year with you. Well, time slips, and I must be going. This is Christmas eve, you know.

SOMETHING NEW.

A Delicious Dessert That Will Appear at Christmas Dinners.

A new dessert has made its appearance which is as delicious as it is attractive in appearance. It can be either ordered from the confectioners or made at home, and the latter is preferable at all times. Vanilla ice cream, sponge and fruit cake will be needed. The cakes are cut from loaves and should be an inch thick when sliced and should fit an oblong mold. When the cream is frozen to a mush, pack an inch layer in the mold, then place the fruit cake on this, then cover with another layer of the cream, over which lay the sponge cake, and then add the last cream layer, which should fill and overflow the mold. Lay over this an oiled paper. A buttered one will do or three thicknesses of paraffin paper. Put the cover over this, allowing the paper to come down over the sides, tie securely in place and then run melted lard between the cover and the pan to prevent all possibility of the salt and ice leaking in. Pack in salt and ice for three or four hours. When ready to serve remove the coverings, wipe the outside of the mold with a hot cloth and invert the mold on to a cold dish, when the cream will slip out.

An extra addition can be served in the whipped cream egg frothed with yellow or pink, using cake tins for the first and a bit of boiled sweet juice in the latter instance, this being placed in the cream before whipping.

But this dessert is just as tasty without the sauce. Should this be found too much trouble, then the cream can be dish from the freezer on to slices of the fruit and sponge cake and served.

A Tragedy

Verse and Picture By R. J. DEAN

Vainly is the lion, T'gin's, t'gin's, t'gin's, To slip his bond and flee away; Soon he will be dyin'—

Great is his endeavor, Thinner, thinner, thinner, Can he live to have his faded tail— His foot is even it is—

Thin from lack of dinner, Thinner, thinner, thinner, A starving step his cold is down— Poor unlucky slaver.

Scott's Emulsion

of Cod Liver Oil is the means of life and enjoyment of life to thousands: men, women and children.

When appetite fails, it restores it. When food is a burden, it lifts the burden.

When you lose flesh, it brings the plumpness of health.

When work is hard and duty is heavy, it makes life bright.

It is the thin edge of the wedge; the thick end is food. But what is the use of food when you hate it and can't digest it?

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil is the food that makes you forget your stomach.

AN ANCIENT YOKEL.

Not Quite Sure of His Age, but Knew It Was Something Fearful.

During a Saturday stroll in the country a pedestrian came upon an ancient rustic engaged in breaking stones. Drawing him into conversation, the pedestrian eventually asked the old fellow how old he was.

"Oh, I dunno," was the reply, "but I know I be a fearful age."

"But you must have some general idea how old you are."

"No, I dunno, but I know I be a fearful age," was the only estimate that could be drawn from him.

"All right," said the pedestrian, bringing out his pencil and notebook. "Now, how old were you when you left school?"

"I be nine, sir, when I finished school."

"And what did you do then?"

"Well, I was boy for Farmer Giles for fifteen years."

"And after that?"

"After that I worked for Squire Nokes for seven and thirty years."

"And what now?"

"Well, I was squire for 'Craker, the carrier, for four and fifty years."

"And so on, and so forth, until the final fact was elicited that he had been engaged on breaking stones for a quarter of a century. Then the listener observed, with a withering smile:

"So you don't know how old you are? Well, I'll tell you. You're 78 years old on your own showing."

"I cuss," returned the ancient yokel with unfeigned severity, "I know I be a fearful age." Liverpool Mercury.

WHEN TED COULDEPT

How Yale's Football Hero Collapsed After Tigers' Defeat.

SOOTHED BY HIS BROTHER.

Captain Tells Remarkable Story of the Great Footballer's Hysteria Following the Gridiron Battle at Princeton.

One of the Yale football coaches supplied the facts for the following story, which was written for the New York Evening World by Bozeman Bulger:

When the great football game recently played between Yale and Princeton was ended a big, hunched fellow drew a heavy blanket around his hunched head and shoulders, hid himself in a corner of a box, pulled his elbows up to his knees and sunk his chin and jaws into his hands. Outside thousands were cheering for Old Eli.

Along the streets of Princeton the old volleys of the victors' twenty silent passengers. At the hotel all signed, and a crowd rushed around to sing, "Holla!" and cheer Yale.

Hundreds of the victorious yells, the boy with the white hair and the big blanket rushed up the steps, flung open the door to his room, fell on the bed and burst into a hysterical fit of weeping. On a chair near the bed sat a more elderly man—an expert relief of the young man. Without a word he coolly took the athlete's feet, threw them across his knees and pulled him to his feet.

When the shoes and stockings had been removed the older man, who also carried an athletic breadth of shoulder, reached his hand beneath the shoulders of the weeping athlete and pulled him to his feet.

"Brace up, old fellow," he said. "It's all over now. Tell me what came into you."

For a minute the boy stammered. He couldn't say a word. Finally he threw his arms around the neck of his brother and gulped:

"Well, we won, anyway."

And with another hysterical spell of weeping Ted Coy, acting captain of the Yale team, fell across the bed and buried his face in his hands.

The brother, who had carried the Yale team to victory eight years ago, sat beside him holding his hand, and this is the way the rest of the night found the heroes of 1908 and 1909 when they came to see if everybody had been drenched.

The strain had told, and this was the relaxation which followed the greatest game of 1908. There was a man six feet in height and weighing 180 pounds—the hero of the day—lying like a child. The fortunes of the game had rested upon his shoulders.

With no one to guide him he had been the weakening of his team. With a score of 6 to 0 against them he had desperately ordered the right half-back to take his position at left half and he had gone into the back field determined to carry the ball to victory.

If he had failed the cheering eyes of 3,000 students would have been upon him. He felt that they would have accused him of putting himself in the line, while the men who had fought valiantly for an hour by his side were thrust in the background.

He did it all of his own initiative. The coaches had absolutely nothing to say. During the fifteen minutes which elapsed between the halves the Yale coaches had remained in their dressing room aloof. The room was filled with silence and gloom.

"Do you think you can win?" asked Walter Camm, the veteran coach.

"Yes, I think we can win," Ted Coy answered.

"We will win," said Captain Coy, and that was all that passed. No one and so much as a suggestion to make.

When the first five minutes of the second half had elapsed and no score had been made Sherwin Coy, known to Yale as "Shurt" Coy, sat on the side lines painfully quiet. Edwin Coy, the younger athlete, known to the students as Ted Coy, then made the change which swept Princeton off the field.

On the first down he tore through the Princeton line for seven yards. The Tigers were ripped apart as if they had been made of tissue paper. Again he took the lead, and again the whipping and tearing of the Tiger line was apparent. The brother on the side lines began pounding the coaches on the backs. He had come the way from Minneapolis to see his brother have the day for Yale.

On and on went Acting Captain Coy, and finally the score was ended.

With ten minutes left in which to play, Ted Coy kept up his ripping and grinding at the Princeton line. The brother by his side was a wreck. Nothing could stop Ted. Whether it was brute strength or whether it was the lack of strength on the part of Princeton, the Yale coaches were ended.

With some kick of principal talent which told him to go ahead, and he went.

McFadden, the vice captain of Princeton, says that on one occasion he grabbed Coy around the knees, and, though he weighed more than 200 pounds, he was dragged out of the field. It seemed that nothing could stop the hero of the day. When nobody else could stop the plunkers of the young terror, Captain Dillon of Princeton drove head forward against him and was knocked senseless. He had to be taken from the field in the arms of the trainers. That was the end of the game and the next plunking the indomitable Coy tore through the line and across the line for a touchdown and—the game.

BARN BURNS.

The stock barn of Isome Lewis burned Saturday night on his place at Millstone, Ind. Origin of fire unknown.

This woman says that sick women should not fail to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as she did.

Mrs. A. Gregory, of 2355 Lawrence St., Denver, Col., writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I was practically an invalid for six years, on account of female troubles. I underwent an operation by the doctor's advice, but in a few months I was worse than before. A friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it restored me to perfect health, such as I have not enjoyed in many years. Any woman suffering as I did with backache, bearing-down pains, and periodic pains, should not fail to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backaches, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

A ROYAL SITTING ROOM.

Queen Alexandra's Taste Is Conservative, but Absolutely Perfect. Alexandra, queen of England, sets the fashion for Great Britain. The queen's taste is conservative, but perfect. It is so faultless that paintings and photographs of this beautiful woman made years ago never look old-fashioned or out of date.

The portrait of her by Winterhalter, made just after she was married, though presenting her in the crinoline of the time, shows the elegantly dressed woman even to the critical eye of today, for the keynote of her taste is simplicity, and that is the one thing that never grows old-fashioned. Though in the sixties, the queen has still a perfect figure, which is always dressed in long lines to accentuate its height, whether in her coronation robes or in a simple tailored waist and skirt. The queen displays a fund of any kind, and many another queen, piling the Osmia of trimming on the Pelos of frills, has wondered why she could not achieve the distinction of the British queen's simple attire.

Of late years the queen has dressed almost entirely in mauves, violets and greys or black and white, but her favorite colors are pale pink and blue, and these are always introduced in her apartments wherever she may be staying.

The accompanying cut shows one of her favorite sitting rooms done in white and pale pearly gray silk. The rug and draperies introduce the pink and blue and, as in all her apartments, the queen, there are quantities of flowers. The plants in the room rest in gray wickerwork jardinières. The furniture is of the first empire, the screens and pillows in brocades showing pink and blue on a gray foundation. The whole shows the perfection of refined simplicity.

You should always remember that most cough and cold cures are constipating. Yet the most important thing to do when you have a cold is to move the bowels. You cannot promptly cure a cold until you do this. Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup stops the cough by slaving inflammation of the throat and lungs, and it drives the cold from the system by gently moving the bowels. Children like it for its tastes nearly as good as maple sugar. Sold by all druggists.

What's Yours?

It was 12:30 a. m. in the cheap, all-night restaurant.

"What's yours?" said the "tough" waiter, arms akimbo.

"We gave our orders and in about ten minutes the waiter served my friends, but left me nothing."

"What's yours?" he asked, addressing me.

"Why," said I, surprised and reproachful, "I ordered corned beef and cabbage at least ten minutes ago."

The waiter's jaw became a trifle more aggressive than usual.

REFUSE BASKET.

Device For Getting Rid of Household Accumulations.

"Oh, my! Whatever shall I do with all this rubbish?" exclaims the housekeeper, beholding a miscellaneous collection of papers, scraps and paste-board boxes, the roundup of the regular weekly cleaning. "The ashman deems to take anything but ashes, the rubbish man picks out only such as he can find use for, and the secondhand man will have nothing but the whole papers, and they must be clean at that." This little monologue may be heard most anywhere. The conditions are about the same in any place of large or medium size. There is a great deal of accumulated material around a house which is quite difficult to dispose of. It might be burned, but an effort to dispose of the mass in an ordinary stove would more than likely lead to disaster, even if the stove is of suitable proportions to accommodate the collection. Most of them are not.

The housekeeper's quandary has led to the invention of a model device to be added to the equipment of the household. It is a refuse destructor, in which the accumulations of the household are to be disposed of by burning in the back yard without dust. The destructor is a basket of wire built on an iron frame, supporting it several inches above the ground into this the household accumulations are dumped as well as the sweepings. A match applied soon reduces a big pile to a handful of dust. Such a device solves completely the problem of the disposal of a great deal of material.

We have passed the fifth milestone in our existence. During that time we have grown from a small beginning to a large and prosperous business. We have endeavored to keep abreast of the times, providing for our depositors every safe-guard known to their protection and security. Our funds are guarded by a modern burglary and fire-proof safe, and insurance is carried to cover losses by either burglary or robbery. We pay 4 per cent. interest on time deposits, which is more than any other bank in Breckenridge county pays.

We believe in paying our patrons all we can for the use of their money. The late disastrous bank failures have demonstrated that it is not the oldest and largest bank that is the safest. BOLO FOR ARTILLERISTS.

Machine Gun and Mountain Battery

Men to Wear Filipino Arm.

The bolo, which American troops have had to face in their conflicts with the native Filipino warriors and which the American soldier has learned to dread, is to be adopted by the American troops of the machine gun companies and mountain batteries under a general order recently issued by General J. Franklin Bell, chief of staff.

The bolo and sheath will be worn by each enlisted man, suspended from the waist line on the left side. For a machine gun company the bolo and revolver will constitute the arms for field service and when worn will replace the rifle now carried.

Protection For Apes.

A scheme is being arranged for the protection of the manlike apes in the German colonies of equatorial Africa. It is proposed in the first place that the shooting of these creatures should be strictly prohibited and steps taken for their protection. In connection with this it is proposed to establish in the Kamerun a special reserve for the fauna of the equatorial forest generally. The reserve would include a zoological tropical station, with gardens attached, in which attention would be specially directed to the protection and rearing of the anthropoid apes and other denizens of the forest zone.

FINE LAND FOR FARMS

Hundreds of Home Seekers Flocking to Sun River Valley.

FERTILE REGION IN MONTANA

Soil is Capable of Yielding Big Crops of Wheat, Oats, Sugar Beets and Other Products—May Prove Excellent Dairy Country.

One of Montana's most beautiful agricultural valleys is now the scene of unusual activity, as hundreds of home seekers from all parts of the United States are going there to take up their new homes.

"The Sun river valley, which is a little west of the center of the state, on the eastern slope of the Rocky mountains and near the city of Great Falls, was selected several years ago by the reclamation service as a choice area for the construction of a stupendous irrigation work. The work has progressed rapidly, and several farms have been thrown open to settlers on liberal terms.

"These farms will be obtainable under the homestead law subject to the charges of actual cost of water upon the number of acres actually supplied with water from the system. This charge has been fixed at $40 an acre, divided into not less than five nor more than ten annual payments, any a Washington correspondent of the Chicago News. The sum of $15.00 will be due and payable at the time of making entry. The second installment will be payable March 1, 1910, thus allowing early settlers nearly two years before second payment is due. In this period any industrious settler can get his land into shape to earn its own repayment of the charges.

An interesting part of water in connection with the project is the proposed establishment of model rural villages every six miles. In all there will be twenty of them, and each farm will be more than three miles from a postoffice and school.

All the crops which can be grown in northern countries can be raised in the Sun river valley. It is probable that the principal crops raised will be wheat, sugar beets and potatoes. Usually three cuttings of alfalfa are made annually. Some have cut only two crops, and others have cut four, but the average is three and the average yield about five tons per acre. The present price varies from $5 to $15 a ton in the stack, according to location and demand. It is not probable that the average price will drop below $5 for many years. The cost of putting the hay into the stack is about $1.25 a ton.

The average yields are: corn, 25 bushels; oats, 25 bushels; wheat, 25 bushels; sugar beets, 20 tons. All garden truck is easy to raise except tomatoes and some kinds easily affected by frost, though these with care may be grown sufficiently for family use. An ordinary ranch garden about two miles from Great Falls in 1907 produced a net profit of $225 an acre from the following kinds of vegetables: Cabbage, potatoes, tomatoes, squash, onions, pumpkins, carrots, turnips, leeks and parsley.

The sugar beets grown in the vicinity have analyzed 25 per cent sugar. The best industry in Montana, Great Falls, and a sugar factory is assured upon the completion of the works necessary to irrigate an area large enough to produce 100,000 tons of sugar annually. Past experiments have shown that the farmer should average a net profit of $10 an acre in sugar beets.

It is probable that the Sun river valley will prove an excellent home for a settler. A settler who has been in Montana for three or four years already in operation in the Sun river valley has shown that the industry is profitable and will be profitable in the future. Four and a half million pounds of butter are now imported annually from other states. This means that over $1,000,000 worth of butter is kept in Montana each year for export.

Full details relating to terms, size of farms and all other information regarding the methods of securing lands may be obtained on application to S. B. Robinson, engineer United States reclamation service, Fort Shaw, Mont., or started land reclamation service, Washington.

TO TEST CURE.

Red Rooms For Despondent and Blue For Violent Insane.

Two cottage buildings erected by the state of Illinois at the site of the Illinois Hospital for the Insane at Bartonville, Ill., at a cost of $100,000 and equipped with eight solariums for the work of phototherapy will be dedicated on Thanksgiving day. The solariums are equipped in ruby, two in violet, two in amber and two in opal. The incandescent lamps are of these colors and also the decorations of the walls.

The rooms are built for the purpose of testing the theory that despondent insane patients are enervated by being placed in a red room and violent patients soothed in a blue room. Opal is said to aid the convalescents.

An overwhelming majority was rolled up for this flower above all others in the first national flower show which recently came to a close in the Coliseum at Chicago. The official sanction of the Society of American Florists will be given to it.

DANGER OF "VICIOUS RICH."

Principal of Groton School Says It Is Fearsome.

In the weekly Sunday morning sermon at Yale the Rev. Endicott Peabody, principal of Groton school, recently discussed the danger of the "vicious rich." He is principal of the school where the sons of President Roosevelt, John Hay and William C. Whitney prepared for college. He said:

"It is the vicious, idle rich from whom we have to fear more than from any other element in our modern life. Their viciousness is of the most violent sort and is the most harmful since it is so far-reaching. Besides those who are born rich, another class to be feared are those who become rich and are unable to stand prosperity. 'We no longer fear people in high authority, and in one way this is a good thing. But we do not fear God any longer, it seems sometimes. What we do fear and what is bad is material things. They are in the saddle and ride mankind.'"

MOUNTAIN LION FOR TAFT.

Animal Lassoed After It Had Attacked South Dakota Travelers.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Bigelow of Farmington, S. D., were attacked by a mountain lion a few days ago while driving to Underwood. Mr. Bigelow, while driving through the country, saw what at first he thought was a yearling calf running ahead of his rig. As he drew up to the animal he discovered that it was an unusually large mountain lion.

The lion had attacked the ponies driven by Mr. Bigelow when a cowboy from Billy V. Christlan's ranch came to the rescue and, after several ineffectual attempts, succeeded in lassoing the lion by the head and one of the front legs. The animal was dragged across the prairie until it was subdued and finally "hog-tied."

The lion was taken to Farmington and is now confined in a stout cage. According to the captors, the animal will be presented to President Eliot Taft as a Christmas gift.

BIRD BREEDING FOR PLUMES.

By This Method Woman Hopes to Improve Millinery.

Breeding crows, geese, and other plumage birds for their feathers with has been done with the chrysanthemum by Mrs. L. S. Hertzberg, who is establishing a breeding plant at Huntington, N. Y.

"I do not know how my plans became known," said Mrs. Hertzberg, "for I intended to start up on a small scale and work up quietly. 'This plumage,' she went on, talking in a large, cheerful voice, 'is what I am after. That is a really several feathers attached together. It should be possible to get ostrich plumes far heavier than the feathers of the ostrich. The birds used in millinery will be raised on the place. It seems to me that birds carrying raised for their plumage should prove to be a source of a higher commercial value than can birds not so favored.'"

TO STOP FOREST FIRES.

Forester Wants Observation Towers on Adirondack Mountains.

James S. Whipple, state forest, fish and game commissioner, who is considering the forest protection of New York state forests against fire visitations such as the recent disastrous experience in the Adirondacks, will probably recommend to the legislature that funds be given him to establish observation towers on the higher mountains in order that fires may be detected more easily.

Commissioner Whipple will use a severe penalty for causing fires through carelessness and will insist that the question as to whether the state should pay the entire cost of fighting the forest fires has not been decided. The towers now pay half the expense.

RED FOX WITH WHITE FEET.

"Rarer Than a White Blackbird," Says Lucky Trapper.

A big red fox with four white feet was trapped by John Hall of Sherman, Conn., the other day. Hall, an experienced trapper, says a fox with white feet is rarer than a white blackbird and that he will sell a good price for this, one of the biggest foxes ever seen about Sherman. He has it in an iron cage with three other live foxes and four raccoons.

Hall has been very lucky this season. While hunting a few days ago he shot two muskrats, together weighing fifty pounds, and a coon. He has trapped twenty-two foxes, besides other animals. He has fourteen live skunks in a cage. He can handle the skunks without any result than if they were chickens.

Plant That Weeds.
Scientists agriculturists are taking a great interest in a new plant with blue flowers, the Comelia nudiflora, for this plant eats up weeds. The plant comes from Malabar, where it is of great service in exterminating the lalang and other weeds inimical to rubber growth. In the United States, gardeners at Kew have proved it to be equally powerful against the weeds of a temperate climate, and in Washington the Kew demonstration are being duplicated. The Comelia grows rapidly, and weeds disappear before it.

UNIQUE RIFLE MATCH

England and America to Have Small Caliber Arms Contest.

FIFTY MEN ON EACH SIDE.

May Be Made Three Corners Match if Entry of Australia Can Be Procured. Caliber of Rifles Limited to 23 Handsome Trophy Provided.

An international rifle match of unusual interest will be about this winter under the auspices of the Society of Miniature Rifle Clubs of Great Britain and the National Rifle Association of America. Each country will be represented by fifty men, who will shoot ten shots each at twenty-five yards with miniature rifles. The Americans will doubtless use the 22 caliber, as under the terms of the challenge the caliber of the rifles is limited to 23, which is comparatively unknown in the United States.

The ten shots are to be fired on what is known as a double declivity target, which is really two targets together, each with an inch sighting bull and an inner half inch centering bull. Ten consecutive circles one-quarter of an inch apart divide the count from one to ten. Five shots are to be fired on each target, the ten shots constituting the signature of the latter. The hundred targets will be sent to the National Rifle association by the Society of Miniature Rifle Clubs, hearing the signature of the latter. The endorsement of the American association will be added and fifty of the targets returned to Great Britain. After the shooting the two sets of targets will be collected and exchanged to verify the scores, which will be sent by cable. It is possible that this unique match will be a three corners affair, with Australia will be drawn into it. The British society has provided a handsome trophy to be held for one year by the winning country, and each participant will receive a commemorative medal. Considerable preparation will be necessary for the match, which will likely take place in the midwinter. The National Rifle association will shortly begin selecting the fifty shots to represent the United States, and as it is desired to secure the best it is probable that all the rifle clubs affiliated with the association will be invited to compete for the honor of supplying members of the team. After the "tryouts" a team will be selected, and when the match is shot the men chosen will "root their strings on the range" by hanging to their own clubs. If possible, the dates will be arranged so that the shooting will be done in both countries, or all three, if Australia comes in, on the same date, though necessarily there will be some difference in actual time. The challenge provides that any rifle not exceeding 23 caliber may be used, with any sights not employing glass, any ammunition, and that any position may be assumed. The Americans will probably request that the latter be changed and that the provision be restricted to offhand. It is believed the challengers will agree to this.

While 22 caliber rifle practice, both in and out of doors, is growing in favor in the United States with great rapidity, the sport has not yet the popularity or the support it receives in England. Some of the greatest men and women of the latter country are the best marksmen in the world. For example, the Society of Miniature Rifle Clubs is under the patronage of H. H. the Duke of Connaught while the Duke of Norfolk (the premier duke of England) and the Duke of Westminister, the wealthiest peer of that country, associated with them in the management of the society are such distinguished personages as the Marquess of Londonderry, the Earl of Albemarle, Viscount Cobble, Lieutenant General Sir Ian Hamilton, Major General Sir Alfred Trench, Lieutenant General W. W. Bricson, Lieutenant General F. Lascelles, Major General R. B. Love, Major General W. H. McKinnon, Major General A. C. Codrington and many others.

The president of the organization is none other than the great field marshal Earl Roberts, who has been so active in promoting the cause of miniature rifle practice as well as military and civilian rifle practice in general throughout the British empire. The only organization in the United States which approaches the support given the English society is the National Rifle association.

Plucky Football Player.
Barion Miller, first guard on the Norfolk (Conn.) football team, is the pluckiest man playing the game in Connecticut this season. On a recent Saturday Miller had four ribs fractured, but played the game out before seeking a doctor. The other day, when Norfolk met Torrington, Miller surprised players and rooters of the Norfolk eleven by appearing in tears for the first time. He played right guard in both halves, Norfolk lost by a score of 1 to 0, but it was not Miller's fault.

Little Christmas Folk.
They're thinking 'bout the Christmas time.
Who come from long ago.
An' they keep the old folks dreamin' Of days of long ago.
As the children are the flowers We're reapin' in life's snow.
They're thinkin' 'bout the Christmas time.
The days, they pass so slow!
But they're firin' from the old folks And the children are the flowers We're reapin' in life's snow.
—F. L. Stanton in Atlanta Constitution.

Papering Damp Walls.

An excellent and comparatively inexpensive way to paper damp walls is the following: Paint corrugated cardboard, such as is sold for packing bottles, etc., on both sides with asphalt varnish and fix it when dried with five-eighths inch tacks to the damp wall so that the smooth surface is directed toward the room and the corrugations run from ceiling to floor against the wall. At the floor level one-half inch should be left uncovered. The cardboard should then be covered with coarse hessian or other packing material, on which a plain covering paper and lastly the wall hangings may be pasted. The shifting board should be removed while tacking on the cardboard, which will leave small holes of an inch in length under the cardboard at intervals of ten to twelve inches below it. It is attached to the wall—Architects and Builders' Journal.

Embarrassing.

A rather pompous looking dean in a certain city church was asked to take charge of a class boys during the absence of the regular teacher. While endeavoring to impress upon their young minds the importance of living a Christian life the following question was propounded: "Because they don't know you," was the ready answer of a bright eyed little boy, responding to the instructor's smile with one equally guileless and winning—Lippincott's.

Only a Lack of Facilities.

Clara's aunt took her for a visit to Niagara falls. After viewing the great waterfall for some time and the little girl fell to making any remarks and tried to draw some expression from her as to what she thought of the spectacle. Finally she said: "Clara, don't you think the falls are beautiful, wonderful?" and was amazed at the child's unobtrusive reply: "Oh, yes, I suppose so, but I think our creek at home would do it if it had of 'cess."—Woman's Home Companion.

THE JOKER NUGGET.

An Incident of the Early Australian Gold Diggings.

Among the rich finds in the Australian gold diggings the Joker nugget ranks among the chief. It turned to scale at thirty ounces and was sold $1000. Its size and shape it resembled a small lump of the world and tapering off toward the back. The claim had been a good one for the first, and the owner did not like to work long. One day he was working full length lying on his back, when he caught sight of the Joker. He at once covered it with his hands and sat up, wondering how it would secure the treasure without being seen. If the find became known every man in the field would tramp the spot and invade his claim and to prevent him working. A man in an adjoining claim looked up. "Found anything?" he asked. "No. Seen the Joker—that's all. Which way do you mean, will you? It's lying near there I want a snuff." "Here you are, mate. But what's the matter? You look pale. Did you feel a little bit all right, only the sun is a bit hot?" He was struggling with an insane desire to laugh, but he got his coat over the nugget and sat up, wondering how it would secure the treasure without being seen.
